Dear Mr. Weisberg -

Excuse belated note - am overburdened with physics assignments lately. I have enclosed a copy of my phone bill and a check for the remaining amount I owe you for the books.

I have no correspondence from my insurance company because my only conversation with them was over the phone. But it should be easy enough to get a letter from them asserting that they had never sent an inspector to visit me. I also have no papers, etc from the "inspector" because he offered no identification. I do have the license number of his car (#862064NY), my suspicions having been aroused at the end of our conversation. He asked me a series of questions such as - where does your husband work? I said - the insurance company should know that. Then - where did you live before you moved here? I asked - what's that got to do with the condition of the car? He then abruptly turned and stalked off. That's when I watched to see what car he got into.

Of late I have been losing interest - perhaps because my studies are so time-consuming and also unrelated to my political interests.

At first I was calling the TV stations stations, demanding Watergate coverage, writing to congressmen. There is still a radio station in New York (WBAI-FM) which carries live coverage and PBS-TV station shows nightly reruns. I am disappointed in the recent series of magazine articles and have found you were absolutely correct about the movies - "Executive Action" and "Second Gun". In our conversation I was puzzled about why you were unimpressed with and/or unenthusiastic about the work of other journalists and researchers, but I now understand why. Sherman Skolnick is a joke among my close friends; the more I talk along the same lines, the more they compare me to him.

I am interested in the meeting of Mr. Fensterwald's committee this week - I learned about it in the book review section of Sunday's Times. If there is a newsletter of any kind - please don't forget me.

Thank-you.

Muriel Glass.
